This past week I have been here in Kalamazoo working with people and sharing the spirit of God as best I am able. On the weekend of Jan 27-28, I attended a seminar in Kalamazoo called The Art of Listening. I knew that I was to experience a great deal of change and growth as well as discover new understandings during the seminar for I had been very nervous for the two weeks prior to this weekend. Whenever I feel the nervousness of the spirit within me, I realize that somehow change is happening or going to happen in my life. Sometimes I can just sit back and wait and experience the unfolding events and at other times I fight them for fear in the self, the lower self, will sometimes rise up and try to separate me from this growth.

This was the case prior to the weekend events I am about to share. The lower self did a great deal to make me want to remain home and not attend the conference but fortunately the higher spirit within prevailed and here I am. The seminar was held at Nazareth College in Kalamazoo, Michigan. I had never been there before and was not aware of what the college was all about but as soon as I arrived on the property, I began to experience a great flow of light which caused me to be rather dizzy. The dizziness persisted all the first evening and the next morning. I was unable to explain the event or why it was happening, but I know it was something dealing with the spirit and why I was there because the dizziness seemed to be caused by an upward flow of Spirit and Light. I tried to understand this manifestation but was unable to do so. During the evening and next morning I was also drawn to look out a certain set of windows through which I could see a large building. It seemed to draw me but I did not really understand the reason for this either and really gave it little thought other than to ask someone what the building was. When I was told it was the chapel, I still didn't relate to any of the events thus far but I made a mental note that I would like to see the chapel if there was time. Later I talked with a resident of Nazareth, who was also the instructor of the seminar, and told her that I wanted to see the chapel if there was time. Her response was one of great enthusiasm which made me want to see it more.

On Sunday I awoke with a headache and realized that for some reason the flow of spirit was congested or blocked. I would have searched out the reason if I had had time but the seminar took my full attention that morning. Then at lunch time I went up to my room to meditate. Usually if I meditate I can get the answers I need or I can have the spirit flow through my being unblocking the congested areas. As I sat in meditation, I was suddenly lifted up in the astral and I began travelling. I went right to an area of ~~xxxxx~~ light in the astral sky and discovered it was a Teleport. The only other one I had seen like this one was over the Phoenix, Arizona area where I had a similar experience - it was there that I was introduced to Shamballa and the teleport systems.

These systems are best described by their name. Interdimensional Teletransport Systems. It is through this system that beings on different dimensional planes are able to move from one dimension to another and back again. There are those who can do this mentally with the Soul mind such as I do but there are those who are unable to do this. So the ITS serves as a way that these beings can travel to different levels.

I found it interesting that the Teleport seemed to be in the astral but there was no real astral city of Lights around it. There was a small community of beings residing around the teleport area in the Astral though, so while I was there I began asking questions. I was then taken on board an ITS and one man began to explain something about the ship and its workings.

I am not a scientist or a person of knowledge in the areas they were explaining so I will attempt to explain what I heard and saw but I will not be able to give any scientific understanding concerning these areas. They first took me to a room in which there was a rather large box sitting on a table. On the table and on the box were two dials which were marked with lines at certain points. The man showing me around began explaining that the way the ship or ITS travels and is propelled is much the same as the way ships were transported from one area to another during the time of Atlantis some 18,000 years ago. He then opened the box and explained that it operated much like a large ear in its function. What the device did was to collect frequency waves of a certain pitch and convert this to energy much as the ear converts sound waves into electric current. It wasn't really an electric current so much as an energy current, but it seemed electric. The table top was clear like glass or plastic with small, fine wire running through it in circles around the center with a wire about every inch or so. Etched on the glass top surface was a map of the Milky Way or at least I thought it was. Instead I found out when I asked that it was a map picture of a system in the astral universe in which this particular vehicle travelled.

Above the table was a concaved mirrored surface which had a small hole in the center with a metal rod and circular surface rising forth. It looked a lot like the antennae or dishes used in satellite communications. He said this dish helped in focusing the energy better so little of it was wasted.

My friend then began explaining that this unit was powered by an energy source much different from anything science had discovered as a source of energy and that in ancient times this source of energy was understood by mankind and was used widely until it brought about great destruction because of its misuse. That is why the source is withheld from the consciousness of humanity at this time - because it is feared mankind would misuse it. There have been a few people who have tapped into awareness of the source of energy and have tried to develop it but as yet a complete understanding is not available and won't be for a time. It appears that scientists are going to have to forget everything they have learned about energy in order to learn about and understand this new source.

We then began travelling in the ITS and went down to the physical planes of Earth and began skimming the surface of the Earth's atmosphere. Suddenly I saw a blast or burst of light in some clouds up ahead and commented on the storm, to which the reply came, "That is not a storm in the way you mean. Rather that is an electrical storm created by a group of scientists who are experimenting with energy. As yet they have only a small amount of knowledge concerning this type of energy and in their search and experiments these electrical discharges are some of the results."

We then went down closer to get a look but in order to be safe we had to return to the astral dimension for it was not safe to remain in the physical state and be in the center of this electrical storm. He showed me a research lab where scientists are investigating "A Curved Energy" and are learning to dip into the "Standing Electricity" which surrounds the Earth. We then went high up away from the Earth and he showed me several of these stations or labs around the Earth. Suddenly I noticed another storm on the other side of the Earth which seemed intense and he said it was a result of the same experiment we had just seen. We then returned to the ITS station over the Kalamazoo area and went into a classroom where we sat and he began sharing these ideas.

The Earth is surrounded by a magnetic field with its poles of polarity at the North and South regions of the planet. The physical body of man, as do<sup>all</sup> all living things, creates this type of magnetic field around its body. Wherever there is life energy, there is a magnetic field. This is what you see when you see the aura of someone or something. Just as you have currents of flow within water, so there are currents of flow of the magnetic field and it is in the flow of this magnetic field where lies one clue to a source of energy. There is a great deal of knowledge yet to be learned concerning magnetism and the energy stored within its field. The flow of water has been

has been used for centuries and generations as a source of power. Soon the flow of magnetism will be understood in just the same manner and will be used as a source of power.

Yet this will only be a small part of the overall understanding needed to trip the real power house of the universe. With the understanding of magnetism and the current of flow power will come a question and an understanding. The understanding of this new energy source will help to answer a part of the question which will arise from the understanding of this major source of energy.

The question will concern the "glue of the universe" or power or magnetism which holds matter together. There is an energy which acts like a glue which holds matter together and is the force field which holds the structure of the atom together. Through the study of Solar Winds, Magnetic Fields and gravity will come some of the answers. As well as these studies, the studies and experiments with atom structure and particles will eventually lead scientists to the glue of the universe. Then will come the challenge on how to tap this source for energy.

This study, this science will open many doors to physical universal understanding and will expand the science of physics to new heights.

With these studies will come yet another source of energy, that being from sound and light frequencies. It will be learned that when the glue of the universe is tapped that light and sound frequencies that emanate from this source will be an important part of the energy force.

Through our developing science here in the higher planes as well as understanding in science that has been developed in other physical planets much of this particular science is understood today. We are able to use such an energy source to power our vehicles and other instruments we use. Through the knowledge of sound and light, we are now able to attune to any frequency band within the universe and derive an energy source which drives our equipment.

Before going further with explanations of this source of energy, let us say here that there is a great danger in this science and there is a great deal of good which can arise from its study. Because you are dealing with the universal glue, it is important and should be easily understood that when you unbind or weaken the glue holding something together that the structure falls apart. There is a great danger in this science because it is very easy to use this knowledge for destruction. In the wrong hands this science of energy could be used as a science of death and destruction. This is why the knowledge has been withheld as long as it has. Several times in the last hundred years a certain few have begun to move into understanding and experimenting with this science, but it is only now that it will be pursued to a final understanding. The danger of destruction has not been lessened thus allowing this knowledge to be known, rather science has come to a point where this avenue of science is an ultimate result of ongoing research. It is only hoped that humanity has grown enough through the awareness of atomic energy and its destructive force that this new science will be respected and used wisely.

As we have stated to you before, it will be necessary for scientists to review and change their ideas concerning energy before they will truly begin to understand this new avenue of research. The old concepts of energy and the sources of energy will only stifle their attempts to understand these new areas and new sources of clean, safe energy. Even though we have stated that this energy is safe, know that it will be safe after science has learned its full destructive powers and how to neutralize this potential danger. Until that time there will be danger involved in the development of this new source and new science.

Concerning the use of the energy that is termed the glue of the universe, it will be necessary to develop a way in which this energy source can be tapped safely. Truly this force is everywhere in all matter holding it together. If, however, you start drawing from matter this "glue" you will quickly find that the matter around you will begin to fall apart or collapse. So it is not safe to just pull this "glue" or energy from substances at random. Rather, through study first, there should be found several compounds or elements which can be used safely to draw this "glue" from, and in the process a chemical reaction will take place which must be monitored and contained. If this is done, it will be a good and rather safe beginning. If not, you will find difficulty in controlling the reaction and the danger could be great.

Ultimately you will want to get your glue energy source from a point in the physical material world where there is no real concern about chemical reactions or widespread destruction. Remember, the destruction could be to all matter including man's body. This would mean going to a point where the source of energy is available in large quantities and yet when this source of energy is drawn upon, it will not create chemical reactions or destruction.

To understand this better, let us explain it in this manner. Within the study of the science of the mind, much has been said about meditation. Within the study certain concepts have come forward which offer a great deal of scientific knowledge if one approaches the science with an open mind and an investigating mind.

One of the theories of meditation concerns transcending the mind and returning to the source of all thought. This involves taking a certain idea or statement or word into meditation and riding the pattern or waves of thought development back through the conscious and subconscious minds until you reach the point in mind where the idea first took form. Then you carry the process one step further by transcending mind and entering into the state of all being where all thought is first conceived and where the source of all energy for thought and expression is derived. In this manner one reaches past the point where thought first develops and becomes one with the source of all thought and being.

Just as a person who meditates is attempting to enter into this plane beyond the material world and find the source of all, so too the scientists who attempt to use this great new energy source will find it necessary to look beyond the normal physical laws they have derived from their studies. It will be necessary to find a way to tap into the source of the energy of matter at its point of active entry into physical matter. By this method no matter will be changed or damaged, but a ready supply of energy will be available.

Much understanding of this science will come about through the study of magnetic and gravitational fields of this planet as well as the understanding of frequency science. Sound and Light frequency science will be a major breakthrough in energy source studies and will also supply a clean unlimited supply of energy. Through this particular science, much understanding of what you term standing electricity will be derived and ultimately mankind will be able to draw upon the Earth as a great battery.

Today you see in the broadcast of radio and television the use of many different frequency bands to carry signals around the world. Through the studies we are speaking of, you will eventually see vehicles for transportation used in the same manner. It will be possible to tune into a frequency band and ride that band around the world. This is what was used for transportation by ancient civilizations of this planet and it will be used again in the future. It is a knowledge still used today on the inner planes of life to transport the ITS but we also are able to travel vertically as well as horizontally. By this I mean that we are able to travel through different dimensions as well.

As this science of frequency energy and standing electricity expands, the technology will lead to eventual space travel at speeds and ease which science today has yet to imagine. Much of what is needed for a better understanding of this is in the study of the Big Bang Theory and in the background radiation that is spread throughout the universe.

Remember the device I showed you earlier on the table with a collector dish above it? Be sure to also state that the entire ship or craft is used as a sound frequency collector or instrument and that this unit is a focuser of this frequency collection. You could liken this to man and the aura. The aura collects and registers all energy activity occurring in and around the person. If the individual is aware and attuned to the many different levels of self and the aura, then the person can be aware of a great many things that are happening. These events can and do range from the personal level outward to the universe, so truly one can be attuned and aware of a great deal if they learn to attune and listen to these multi levels of self. In this same way it can be learned.
